A message from District Physical Literacy teacher Jina Taylor

Dear Families,

Happy March! With a new month comes new opportunities for growth and development. I am excited to introduce the latest edition of my Parent Physical Literacy Resource for March.

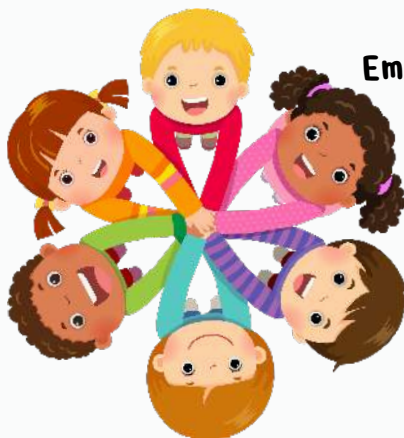

I encourage you to take some time to review the resource with your child and incorporate the suggested activities into your family routine.

Physical literacy is an essential component of a healthy and active lifestyle, and by engaging in these activities together, you can support your child's development and well-being. Please see the attachment.

Have a wonderful month ahead!
